...and the show will go on!

Save the date: Sunday, May 21, 2023, the official date for our Mopars In May 22nd Annual All Chrysler Car & Truck Show, Swap Meet & Toy Drive.

After much discussion at the October club meeting the attending club membership voted to continue our annual charity-benefit all-Mopar car show. Now the fun begins with the planning! As always, we need help from all club members to make our upcoming car show a success and continue the stellar reputation our prior shows have earned. Planning will start at our November club meeting so please make every effort to attend.

For those of you that may not have been able to attend our October club meeting at the Ontario Elks car show, Gene Endo volunteered to be our new car show chairman. Thanks, Gene, for stepping up!

Keeping up with tradition, our car show advertising kicked off at the recent CPW Fall Fling event as Gene and Susan Endo, and Mike Keller distributed "Save the Date" car show flyers to the car show participants, swappers and vendors. Here we go.

Our annual Fort Irwin Toy Drive is progressing well and our next few weeks will be very busy with upcoming events. Please see the Toy Drive event date list in this newsletter and come on out to help and have a good time. We will have an update on the Toy Drive at the November club meeting.

We still need a third car for our annual club display at the 2023 Grand National Roadster Show at the Fairplex in Pomona, February 3-5. Although we received an extension from Rod Shows to get our third Mopar club vehicle entry form mailed to them, time is running out. Please contact me at your earliest convenience and let me know if you are interested in having your Mopar be a part of our 2023 Grand National Roadster Show annual club display.

Also, we will have a sign-up sheet at the November club meeting for work shifts at our annual club fund raiser at the GNRS. Be at the club meeting to make sure you sign up for your preferred shift days and times.

Inland Mopars continues to ask for volunteers to assist with our social media presence (Facebook, Instagram). We need a social media presence to reach out to potential new younger members.

Reminder:

- Our November club meeting is scheduled for Sunday, November 6, in the banquet room at Cactus Cantina restaurant in Riverside. As usual, we will meet for breakfast at 9am and get the meeting going as close to 10am as possible.
- 2023 club officer nominations and elections will take place at our November club meeting. Here is your opportunity to make your voice heard and guide the future direction of Inland Mopars Car Club.

If you might be in the market for a crate engine for your next Mopar project build and you just don't think the Mopar factory-offered 707-horsepower Hellcrate engine will do, then take a look at the new offering from Don Schumacher Racing. The DSR 1150 is a turnkey 426ci third-generation Hemi drop-in crate engine that runs on 93-octane pump gas and puts out 1,150 peak horsepower at 6,500 rpm and 974 lb-ft of torque at 5,200 rpm at an introductory price of $37,950. The first 10 of an initial batch of 20 have already been sold.

Put one of these in your Mopar and you will be sure to get home from the store before the ice cream melts!

As always, thank you to everyone for all you do to make Inland Mopars Car Club the very best it can be - the club's reputation - and both our annual car show and toy drive - is a direct reflection of the membership.//

The first couple of minutes of the show featured shots at MATS, one with Bill & Debbie Whitson at a vendor trailer. (FYI: the owner is Bill Adams, who we have worked with for years parking cars at MATS.)
- Performance Online Inc. 9/11 Remembrance Cruise - Lonnie Clabaugh advised he participated in this event. He said he "...took his 'rust bucket' and a big ol' American flag" and did the cruise with about 100 other cars. The cruise ended up at a brewery.

Save The Racecars! Edelbrock's Efforts To Help The RPM Act Pass

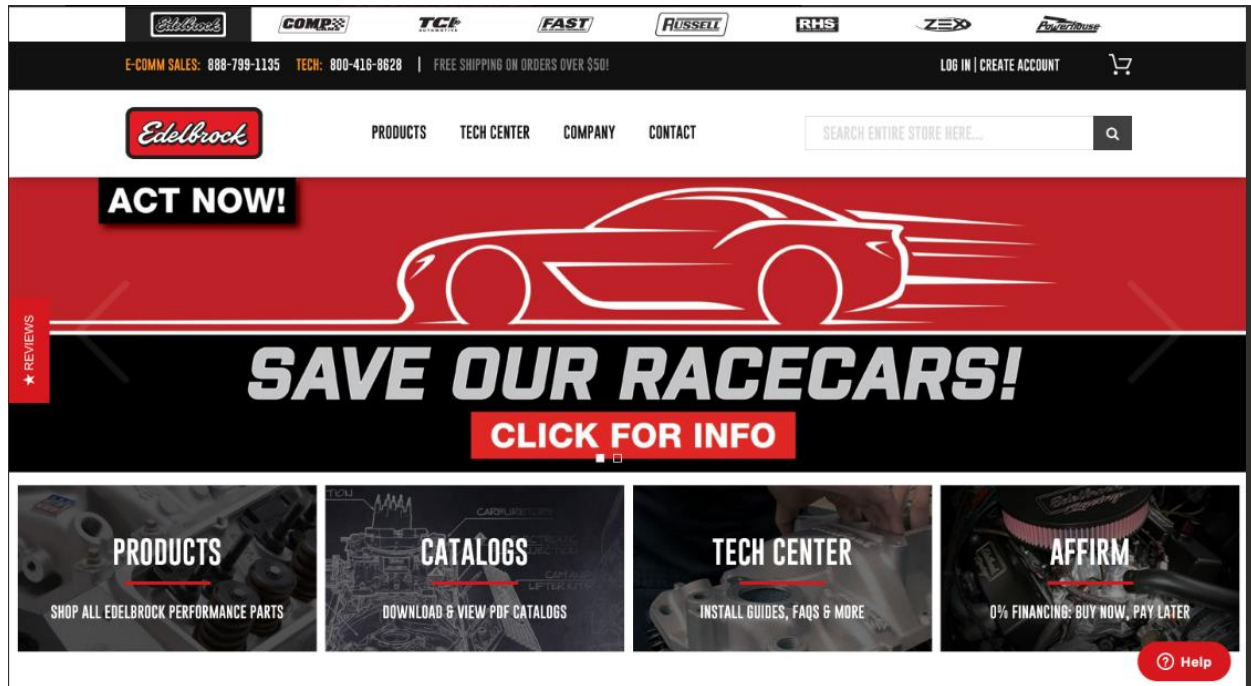

By JEREMY NICHOLS OCTOBER 24, 2022

You may not be aware, but racecars are in danger of being outlawed. This goes for cars, trucks, and motorcycles that participate in all forms of motorsports. The Recognizing the Protection of Motorsports Act of 2021 \(RPM Act\) \(H.R. 3281/S.2736\) would reverse the EPA's interpretation of the Clean Air Act and save the racecars and the motorsports industry. Parts manufacturers such as Edelbrock are doing their part to help get the RPM Act through Congress and into law. But it's going to take any and all of us that love building racecars and competing in motorsports to show support for the RPM Act in order to save this hobby, profession, and industry we love.

For a bit of background, in 2015, the EPA took the stance that any vehicle designed for street use converted to a dedicated racecar violates the Clean Air Act if it no longer meets emissions requirements. Although the EPA's efforts to make its policy a formal regulation have not come to fruition, the agency remains steadfast in its position that modifying a vehicle's emission system to convert the car for racing is illegal.

Edelbrock has a large banner on the front page of its website that makes it easy to put your support behind the RPM Act.

That's where the RPM Act comes in. The RPM Act is a common-sense, bi-partisan piece of legislation that protects our rights to convert street vehicles into dedicated racecars. In addition, the legislation protects the aftermarket parts industry's ability to manufacture, sell, and install products that enable racers to build racecars and compete. The RPM Act does not interfere with the EPA's emissions requirements for street-driven vehicles or its authority to enforce regulation infractions against those that illegally install race parts on street-driven cars.

We all need to contact our representatives and let them know we support the legislation to save our racecars and the motorsports industry we love. To help make it as easy as possible for people to do this, Edelbrock has placed a large banner front and center on its website. Clicking the banner will present you with several links that you can use to contact your representatives. First, there is a prewritten letter; you enter your name and address, and it populates an email for each of your representatives containing the prewritten letter asking for their support of the RPM Act. One click later, the emails are sent.

The second option is for those that would like to call their representatives on the phone. The website provides key talking points and notes you can have in front of you while speaking to your representatives. The website even takes care of making the calls for you.

As a whole, we all need to make an effort to ensure that our representatives and lawmakers know that motorsports are a national tradition that must be saved. Do your part by visiting Edelbrock's website and getting involved.

I don't remember where I found this but it fits in with the EV conversation. Formatting is the only thing changed.

Not Quite A "Turn Key" Solution...

A little bit of a long read, but right on target. Liberals refuse to accept "Law of Physics". Toyota marketing strategy is smart and set to put GM in the grave.

Toyota comments on EVs:

A Dose of Reality Depending how and when you count, Japan's Toyota is the world's largest automaker. According to Wheels, Toyota and Volkswagen vie for the title of the world's largest, with each taking the crown from the other as the market moves. That's including Volkswagen's inherent advantage of sporting 12 brands versus Toyota's four. Audi, Lamborghini, Porsche, Bugatti, and Bentley are included in the Volkswagen brand family.

GM, America's largest automaker, is about half Toyota's size thanks to its 2009 bankruptcy and restructuring. Toyota is actually a major car manufacturer in the United States; in 2016 it made about 81% of the cars it sold in the U.S. right here in its nearly half a dozen American plants. If you're driving a Tundra, RAV4, Camry, or Corolla it was probably American-made in a red state. Toyota was among the first to introduce gas-electric hybrid cars into the market, with the Prius twenty years ago. It hasn't been afraid to change the car game.

All of this is to point out that Toyota understands both the car market and the infrastructure that supports it perhaps better than any other manufacturer on the planet. It hasn't grown its footprint through acquisitions, as Volkswagen has, and it hasn't undergone bankruptcy and bailout as GM has. Toyota has grown by building reliable cars for decades.

When Toyota offers an opinion on the car market, it's probably worth listening to. This week, Toyota reiterated an opinion it has offered before. That opinion is straightforward: The world is not yet ready to support a fully electric auto fleet.

Toyota's head of energy and environmental research Robert Wimmer testified before the Senate this week, and said: "If we are to make dramatic progress in electrification, it will require overcoming tremendous challenges, including refueling infrastructure, battery availability, consumer acceptance, and affordability."

Wimmer's remarks come on the heels of GM's announcement that it will phase out all gas internal combustion engines (ICE) by 2035. Other manufacturers, including Mini, have followed suit with similar announcements.

Tellingly, both Toyota and Honda have so far declined to make any such promises. Honda is the world's largest engine manufacturer when you take its boat, motorcycle, lawnmower, and other engines it makes outside the auto market into account. Honda competes in those markets with Briggs & Stratton and the increased electrification of lawnmowers, weed trimmers, and the like.

Wimmer noted that while manufacturers have announced ambitious goals, just 2% of the world's cars are electric at this point. For price, range, infrastructure, affordability, and other reasons, buyers continue to choose ICE over electric, and that's even when electric engines are often subsidized with tax breaks to bring price tags down.

The scale of the switch hasn't even been introduced into the conversation in any systematic way yet. According to Finances Online, there are 289.5 million cars just on U.S. roads as of 2021. About 98 percent of them are gas-powered. Toyota's RAV4 took the top spot for purchases in the U.S. market in 2019, with Honda's CR-V in second. GM's top seller, the Chevy Equinox, comes in at #4 behind the Nissan Rogue. This is in the U.S. market, mind. GM only has one entry in the top 15 in the U.S. Toyota and Honda dominate, with a handful each in the top 15.

Toyota warns that the grid and infrastructure simply aren't there to support the electrification of the private car fleet. A 2017 U.S. government study found that we would need about 8,500 strategically-placed charge stations to support a fleet of just 7 million electric cars. That's about six times the current number of electric cars but no one is talking about supporting just 7 million cars. We should be talking about powering about 300 million within the next 20 years, if all manufacturers follow GM and stop making ICE cars.

Simply put, we “are gonna need a bigger energy boat to deal with connecting all those cars to the power grids, a WHOLE LOT” bigger.

But instead of building a bigger boat, we may be shrinking the boat we have now. The power outages in California and Texas — the largest U.S. states by population and by car ownership — exposed issues with powering needs even at current usage levels. Increasing usage of wind and solar, neither of which can be throttled to meet demand, and both of which prove unreliable in crisis, has driven some coal and natural gas generators offline. Wind simply runs counter to needs — it generates too much power when we tend not to need it, and generates too little when we need more. The storage capacity to account for this doesn't exist yet.

We will need much more generation capacity to power about 300 million cars if we're all going to be forced to drive electric cars. Whether we're charging them at home or charging them on the road, we will be charging them frequently. Every gas station you see on the roadside today will have to be wired to charge electric cars, and charge speeds will have to be greatly increased. Current technology enables charges in "as little as 30 minutes," according to Kelly Blue Book. That best-case-scenario fast charging cannot be done on home power. It uses direct current and specialized systems. Charging at home on alternating current can take a few hours to overnight to fill the battery, and will increase the home power bill. That power, like all electricity in the United States, comes from generators using natural gas, petroleum, coal, nuclear, wind, solar, or hydroelectric power according to the U.S. Energy Information Administration. I left out biomass because, despite Austin, Texas' experiment with purchasing a biomass plant to help power the city, biomass is proving to be irrelevant in the grand energy scheme thus far. Austin didn't even turn on its biomass plant during the recent freeze.

Half an hour is an unacceptably long time to spend at an electron pump. It's about 5 to 10 times longer than a current trip to the gas pump tends to take when pumps can push 4 to 5 gallons into your tank per minute. That's for consumer cars, not big rigs that have much larger tanks. Imagine the lines that would form at the pump, every day, all the time, if a single charge time isn't reduced by 70 to 80 percent. We can expect improvements, but those won't come without cost. Nothing does. There is no free lunch. Electrifying the auto fleet will require a massive overhaul of the power grid and an enormous increase in power generation. Elon Musk recently said “we might need double the amount of power we're currently generating if we go electric.” He's not saying this from a position of opposing electric cars. His Tesla dominates that market and he presumably wants to sell even more of them.

Toyota has publicly warned about this twice, while its smaller rival GM is pushing to go electric. GM may be virtue signaling to win favor with those in power in California and Washington and in the media. Toyota's addressing reality and its record is evidence that it deserves to be heard.

Toyota isn't saying none of this can be done, by the way. It's just saying that so far, the conversation isn't anywhere near serious enough to get things done.

Champion Cooling Systems #5 Car & Truck Show and Toy Drive

photos by Jerry Shory

Saturday October 15th started out nice & sunny and dry...oops, wrong day. It really started out dark, wet and chilly but not raining. Weather kept about half of the preregistered vehicles away but the ones that did show up got to enjoy another excellent show. There was something for everyone to enjoy with many not seen before. Michael Harding had everything laid out great. No one had a problem finding parking, vendors, raffle, food...or the toy drive drop off. We collected 7 boxes of toys plus skate boards and oversize items. And another $280 so Norma can do more shopping. Thanks everyone.

Below is what 7 boxes of toys from the Champion Cooling Car Show, 3 boxes of toys from the toy drive Cruise at Legends Burgers in Rancho Cucamonga, and 3 shopping trips by Norma (10 boxes plus skate boards and bags of stuffed animals) looks like stored on the GNRs entry Demon prior to being loaded & on the way to storage. Truck loaded on the front seat, back seat and bed filled. Still too much empty space in storage.

Sherm Taylor Scholarship Endowment

Some of you will remember Sherm Taylor as the big guy at the Chaffey College Car Show. He was an automotive instructor and ended up wearing many different hats at Chaffey. Last year he was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer and had started treatment. He passed away in March. Sherm had a 440 engine he was selling before his passing. It is still listed in the Nuts & Bolts section of this newsletter. His sister decided to leave it to Chaffey College after his passing so Chaffey will be using the funds raised towards the scholarship endowment under his name. If you haven't heard about the endowment in his name yet, you can make a donation either on-line or checks can be made out to the Chaffey College Foundation & mailed to the address below:

On-line at <https://chaffey.kindful.com/?campaign=1118679>

Snail mail to Chaffey College Foundation
5885 Haven Ave,
Rancho Cucamonga, CA 91737

Please note Sherm Taylor scholarship in the memo section.

At The Villages in Florida last week, there was a bumper sticker on a parked car that read:

"I MISS CHICAGO ."

Someone broke the window, stole the radio, shot out all four of the tires, added an OBAMA BUMPER sticker and left a note that read:

"HOPE THIS HELPS"
